Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Historical Address at the Sheffield Centennial Commemoration: June 18th, 1876 On this festival occasion you have called upon me for a sketch of the local history which prompts and makes appropriate this our own peculiar Centennial celebration. Although a native, to the manner born, I feel myself but slightly qualified for the task. The theme is not the growth, development, and struggles for existence of a nation; it is of a simple country village, whose fields have ever been those of the husbandman, freely visited, indeed, by the dews of heaven, but unstained by the red drops of war; whose harvests wave not O'er roots set deep in battle-graves; whose modest halls have never resounded with the eloquence of statesmen, nor been the scenes where the nation's destiny was at stake. Not that we are without history; that there is not, for ourselves at least, much worthy to be recorded. But he who would worthily make that record should be not only one lorn amongst you, but reared in your midst; to whom the color of your local life has been imparted; to whom the history of each family has been associated with his own personal history; and to whom the local events which must form his theme have become traditional. These are qualifications which he who addresses you, cannot claim to possess. Removed from this his boyhood's home almost in childhood, his youth and manhood have been spent in regions far away. His way of life, his pursuits, and his associations, have had little in them to remind him - much to cause forgetfulness - of the home where he was...
