One of the many lessons gathered from the life and career of Abraham Lincoln is this: He was prepared for great things by faithfulness in little things. First, he made the most of scanty resources and opportunities. Many another lad has been born, as he was, in a rough frontier cabin, and has spent his early years in poverty, privation, hardship and obscurity; not everyone has found in his disadvantages the rounds of a ladder for his climbing. Many another carpenter's son has seen his father at work without ever learning or caring to handle the tools. Many another boy has grown up far from school privileges, without studying at home by the light of pine-knots and without walking miles to get a grammar.
