Not illustrated. 1856 Excerpt: . . . APPENDIX. After the foregoing, in manuscript, was put into the Publishers hands, our attention was directed to several points, which we here briefly notice. 1. Incidentally we received a copy of the Platform, which seemed to be a kind of second edition, as it differs somewhat with the one we first saw. In glancing over it, we found on page 27, a statement referring to the supposed denial of the Christian Sabbath. As this purported to refer to the article rescinded by authority of the Conference of the Alleghany Synod, we were anxious to see where this article was to be found. Accordingly, on page 29, we found a reference to the Manual, the latest work of Dr. S. S. S. As we had never read this work, and had only borrowed it, for the sake of making a few extracts, we turned to the place pointed out in the Platform; and on pages 306-8 found a partial translation of Art. xxviii of the Augsburg Confession. Now, as we have not time to enter at large into this matter, and as we found nothing here, to sustain the charge of error in relation to the Sabbath, the reader is simply asked to consider the following brief facts, in connection with what we have previously said on this subject. 1. The Article itself relates especially to the power and jurisdiction of Bishops, and quite incidentally refers to the Sabbath, for reasons given below. There is...
