Not illustrated. 1822 Excerpt: . . . all been with him, and he felt that they had been with him as vividly as during the waking hours of the eventful day before. But other images had followed these, some of them as dark and as terrible, but the whole texture of which seemed now to elude the grasp of his remembrance. He had a sort of obscure sense of having been fighting, wrestling, combatting fiercely, hand in hand, with some strong adversary;--whether he had stood or fallen he could not tell, but there was such a mixture of the feelings of wrath and sorrow, that this was as nothing: --Fantastic passions! maddening brawl! And shame and terror over all!--Deeds to be hid which were not hid--Which, all-confused, he could not know Whether he sufferd, or he did: - -For all seemd guilt, remorse, or woe--His own or others, still the same, Lifes stifling fear--soul-stifling shame. What did not diminish, but much increase and strengthen the pain and horror of all this, was, that a sort of voluptuous, languid, sultry air, seemed to hang over the whole mass of the retrospect: Red setting suns--broad, calm, purple skies--mighty trees, loaded with leaves and blossoms--these were the strange accompaniments--strangely jumbled together and ill dennen, it is true--of screams, and battles, and headlong peril, and blood, and death, and misery. Beautiful womens shapes, smiling eyes, and burning blushes, darted in glimpses here and there from amidst the thickest of tumults. Every thing was waxing every moment obscurer and...
